PROJECT

Junk Removal Website

WordPress · built to edit yourself

DATE

31 August 2026

Valid 30 days

THE BRIEF

A WordPress site for a junk removal business that does not have one yet, built from your own logo rather than a template. All six services on one clean page, a full calendar so customers pick their own slot, your Facebook reviews moved somewhere new customers will actually see them, and a Donate page. Two questions decide most of these jobs, and neither is answered anywhere in the brief yet. Page 3 says which two.

Nobody shops for this.

Somebody with a mattress on the kerb, or a garage to clear before a move, is not comparing five junk removal websites. They want three answers and they want them fast: do you come to my town, roughly what will this cost, and can I get it booked now. Whoever answers those three first usually gets the job, and it is very often not the best-looking site.

That is worth saying because what you liked about your reference was the layout. The layout is fine, and we can build something that looks considerably better than it. What actually decides this job is how quickly a stranger standing in a driveway on a phone gets those three answers, and page 5 sets out what that costs.

Here is what we heard, and how we are reading it

WHERE YOU ARE

No website yet, a logo you already have, and plenty of reviews sitting on Facebook where a new customer searching Google will never find them. One service line: garage and basement clean outs, furniture, appliances, mattresses, yard waste, and demo work. You asked twice whether you could edit it yourself afterwards, so it is built for that.

WHAT YOU SENT

A reference site, and the clearest brief we get: you like the layout, and you want it to be your own. Treated as a structure to learn from rather than a design to copy, that settles the shape of the site before we start while the look is drawn from your logo. It also means we can skip the part where nobody agrees what the homepage is for.

WHAT IS MISSING

The two questions above. Where you actually go, and what it roughly costs. Neither appears anywhere in what you have sent. The local search work targets your towns without one being named, and the FAQ answers pricing questions we do not have answers to. Both are yours, both take five minutes, and both change what the homepage says.

The highest-return work, whether or not you asked for it. You chose the full calendar over a simple form, and that is the right call. What nobody has decided yet is what the calendar books. A slot booked with photographs of the load attached and a price band shown before confirming is a commitment. A slot booked with none of that is an appointment to negotiate in somebody's driveway, and those are the jobs that get cancelled while you are already parked outside. The photo upload is not a nice extra; it is the thing that makes the calendar hold. It starts in Growth Site.

Four principles.

Two are about doing the new work properly. Two are about protecting the things this business actually runs on: your own time, and the local customers who are the only ones who matter.

01 Your customer is not browsing, they are solving something today

Which means the homepage does one job before it does anything else: tell a stranger you cover their area, give them a sense of price, and put a way to book within reach of a thumb. Everything else on the page comes after those three, not before them. It is a less pretty brief than most, and it is the reason a plain site that answers quickly beats a beautiful one that makes people scroll to find out whether you even come to their town.

02 Every photograph is one of your own jobs

Stock photographs of tidy garages are recognisable, and in a trade built entirely on whether somebody will let you into their house, being caught using them costs more than having no photograph at all. So the before and after work uses your jobs, taken on your phone, imperfect. Where a service has no picture yet we will say so rather than filling the space with something bought from a library.

03 You edit it yourself, because you are going to need to

You asked about this twice, so it shapes how the site is built rather than being a note at the end. Prices change, you will add a service, reviews come in, and you will need to block off a week. All of that is editable from your dashboard without touching code, and you get a walkthrough of exactly how. On final payment the site is yours on hosting in your name, with no licence fee and nothing that keeps you tied to us.

04 Built to be found in your towns, not on the internet

You are not competing nationally, so the search work is entirely local: the towns you serve named on the page, the wording a neighbour would actually type, a map, business hours, and the structure Google needs to connect the site to your Business Profile. A national ranking would be worth nothing to you. Showing up when somebody two streets away searches is worth the whole project.

Scope of work.

Six delivery modules make up the build and every plan includes all six. What the plans differ on is whether the booking is backed by photographs and a price band, how far the local search work goes, and whether the result is measured. Page 10 shows where each lands.

What we cannot supply, and it decides the result. Photographs of your own jobs. A before and after of a garage you actually cleared is the single most persuasive thing that can go on this site, and it is the one thing we cannot make. Phone photographs are fine, imperfect is fine, and six good pairs beat twenty average ones. If you have none yet, take them on the next three jobs before we reach that phase in week two. Where a service still has no picture the page says nothing rather than borrowing a stock image.

How it is built.

Six choices made before the first page is drawn, each one made for a reason you can hold us to.

WordPress, built for you to edit

PLATFORM

Everything you will want to change sits behind a normal editor: prices, services, reviews, blocked dates. No code, and no ticket to us.

Staging until you say go

SAFETY

The site is built and approved on a staging address first. Your domain points at a finished site on the day it goes live, not a half-built one.

Your jobs, your photographs

EVIDENCE

Real before and after images from work you have done. Nothing bought from a stock library, because in this trade being caught at it costs more than an empty space.

Three answers above the fold

CLARITY

Where you go, roughly what it costs, and how to book. Everything else on the homepage sits underneath those three, in that order.

Measured on a phone, on data

PERFORMANCE

Tested on a mid-range handset on a normal connection, because that is where your customer is standing when they look you up, not at a desk.

Click to call on every screen

YOUR PHONE

Plenty of your customers will always rather ring than fill anything in. The number is one tap away wherever they are on the site.

Timeline: 20 - 25 days to launch.

The recommended plan, Growth Site, with each work area set against the days it runs. Ranges overlap where the work overlaps. Day one is the day the domain is chosen and hosting is live, not the day the order is placed.

01

Setup and direction

DAYS 1 - 5

Domain chosen and hosting set up, WordPress installed, brand direction drawn from your logo and applied to the homepage. You approve the direction on day 5.

02

Homepage and services

DAYS 4 - 12

Hero, services overview, trust and How It Works, then the services page covering all six. You approve the homepage on day 12.

03

Calendar booking

DAYS 10 - 17

Slot selection, the booking form, notifications, confirmations and blocked dates, tested with a real booking. You approve the booking on day 17.

04

Reviews, Donate, Contact

DAYS 14 - 21

Facebook reviews brought across, Donate page, quote form, click-to-call, map and business hours.

05

Local search and launch

DAYS 18 - 25

Service area wording, titles and descriptions, sitemap, Business Profile readiness, speed and browser testing. Published only on your approval.

The one thing that has to happen first. You do not have a domain or hosting yet, and nothing else can start until both exist. We will walk you through choosing a name and set the hosting up for you, but the account is registered in your name and the decision is yours. It usually takes an afternoon. Left until week two, it moves every date on this strip by however long it takes.

PLAN 1 OF 3 - LAUNCH

Launch Site

$1,000

USD · ONE-TIME

The whole site, live on your own domain, with the calendar taking bookings from day one.

DELIVERY	POST-LAUNCH SUPPORT
20 - 25 days	1 month

Launch Site is everything you described, working. A custom build drawn from your logo rather than a template, all six services on one clean page, the full calendar so customers pick their own slot and you get an email the moment they do, your Facebook reviews moved somewhere new customers will see them, and the Donate page. Domain and hosting set up for you, and a walkthrough so you can edit any of it afterwards.

What it does not add is the before and after showcase, photo upload and price bands on the booking, automated confirmations and reminders, the service area sections, the local search foundation, the FAQ or any analytics. The calendar takes bookings; it does not yet qualify them. Nothing built here is undone later. It is the right choice if getting live and taking calls is the priority and the rest can follow.

Best for: getting a real site and a working calendar in front of customers quickly, with the local search and the booking qualification taken as a second decision.

PLAN 2 OF 3 - GROWTH · RECOMMENDED

Growth Site RECOMMENDED

$1,600

USD · ONE-TIME

Everything in Launch Site, plus the before and after showcase, booking backed by photographs and price bands, your service area named, and the local search foundation.

DELIVERY	POST-LAUNCH SUPPORT
20 - 25 days	2 months

Growth Site is the plan we would take, and the reason is on page 3. It makes the calendar book something worth driving to: photographs of the load attached and a price band shown before the customer confirms, plus a confirmation and a reminder so fewer slots go quiet. It also names the towns you serve, which is the difference between a site that exists and one a neighbour can find.

What it does not add is the instant estimate tool, text alerts, the review request flow, the commercial and repeat customer routes, ads readiness or reporting after handover. Those are Complete Site, and they start to matter once the calendar is filling and the question becomes how to fill it faster.

INCLUDES EVERYTHING IN PLAN 1 (LAUNCH SITE), PLUS THE FOLLOWING

Before and after

Your own jobs.

- ✓ Showcase section built
- ✓ Real job photographs
- ✓ Paired before and after
- ✓ Placed where doubt sits

Booking that holds

Fewer driveway talks.

- ✓ Photo upload on booking
- ✓ Price bands attached
- ✓ Automated confirmations
- ✓ Reminder before the slot

Your service area

Named, not implied.

- ✓ Sections for your towns
- ✓ Map of where you go
- ✓ Local wording throughout
- ✓ Nearby searches targeted

Local search

Found on Google.

- ✓ Titles and descriptions
- ✓ Alt text and naming
- ✓ Sitemap and indexing
- ✓ Business Profile ready

FAQ and About

Answered once.

- ✓ Pricing questions answered
- ✓ What you take, listed
- ✓ Your story, told locally
- ✓ Accordion, easy to scan

Analytics

What you can read.

- ✓ Visitors and sources
- ✓ Bookings tracked
- ✓ What gets looked at most
- ✓ Social linked throughout

Best for: a business that wants bookings it can price before it drives, and wants to be found by the neighbours who are its whole market. Our recommended plan.

PLAN 3 OF 3 - SCALE

Complete Site

$2,200

USD · ONE-TIME

Everything in Growth Site, plus the instant estimate, text alerts, review requests, the trade and repeat routes, ads readiness and three months of reporting.

20 - 25 days	3 months priority

Complete Site is about volume rather than presence. The instant estimate gives a range before anybody books, which filters out the jobs that were never going to happen at your prices. Text alerts reach you when you are on the road and remind customers before their slot, which is the cheapest fix for no-shows there is. The review request goes out after every job, so the proof grows without you asking for it.

What it does not add is advertising spend, the photographs themselves, or answering your phone. The terms on page 12 name what sits outside all three plans, and the runbook and walkthrough library are there so running the site is a task you do rather than a quote you ask us for.

INCLUDES EVERYTHING IN PLAN 2 (GROWTH SITE), PLUS THE FOLLOWING

Instant estimate

A number before booking.

- ✓ Size and volume selector
- ✓ Range shown instantly
- ✓ Feeds into the booking
- ✓ Fewer wasted trips

Text alerts

For when you are driving.

- ✓ Text on every booking
- ✓ Reminder to the customer
- ✓ Reduces no-shows
- ✓ Works alongside email

Review requests

Proof that grows.

- ✓ Sent after every job
- ✓ Straight to your Facebook
- ✓ Or captured on site
- ✓ Best ones featured

Repeat and trade

Beyond one-offs.

- ✓ Return customer route
- ✓ Commercial enquiry form
- ✓ Recurring job handling
- ✓ Quote requests logged

Ads readiness

When you want them.

- ✓ Google and Meta pixels
- ✓ Conversion tracking set
- ✓ Booking events mapped
- ✓ Ready to switch on

Reporting and handover

Three months of it.

- ✓ Monthly read on bookings
- ✓ A recommendation a month
- ✓ Written runbook
- ✓ Full walkthrough library

Best for: treating the site as the thing that fills the calendar rather than the thing that proves you exist, with the tracking to show which services are actually paying.

Plan comparison.

Each plan is set out in full on its own sheet; here they are together, shared capabilities included, so nothing has to be worked out by turning back. We recommend Growth Site at $1,600 for one reason: it is the plan where a booking arrives priced and photographed instead of arriving as a guess. Quoted in USD through Fiverr, whose service fee sits outside these numbers.

Who you are working with.

Your first message asked whether we had built a junk removal site before, and whether we could show you examples. The honest answer is that the work we can put in front of you is e-commerce rather than junk removal, and dressing it up as something else would be the first thing we got wrong. What carries across is set out below. Digital Heroes has been building since 2017: fifty-plus specialists across five offices, two of them head offices, in New York, Delhi, London, Lucknow and Sydney, and more than two thousand brands shipped. Your build runs as a small standing team: one WordPress lead who owns the build and the booking system, one designer who owns the look from your logo outward, and one front-end engineer who owns speed on a phone. The Managing Director signs off each approval point and is who you reply to here.

A page that described everything thoroughly and then left the visitor to work it out. We reordered it around the decision being made and moved the proof above the point of doubt. That is the same move your homepage has to make with the three answers on page 3.

BIG GAME SPORTS · ATHLETIC

$850K MRR

A range where every page had drifted into a different shape, rebuilt on one structure defined once and inherited everywhere. It is why your six services are built from a single pattern, so the seventh one you add is a form you fill in rather than a call to us.

Next steps.

Three moves between this document and work starting, and none of them takes a day.

01 Accept the Custom Offer

A Custom Offer for the plan you choose goes into the thread. Accepting it opens the order. It does not start the clock: day one is the day the domain is chosen and hosting is live, and we will walk you through both.

02 Send the short list

The towns you cover. Your phone number and business hours. Your Facebook page so we can pull the reviews you want used. Your logo file at full size. Whatever job photographs you have, or a note that you are taking them on the next few jobs. And your decision on whether prices go on the site.

03 Approve the direction on day 5

The first decision you own. Colours, type and the homepage layout drawn from your logo and shown to you on a staging address before anything else is built. Nothing goes on your domain without your approval.

Terms & conditions.

01 Validity. This proposal and its pricing are valid for 30 days from 31 August 2026.

02 Billing. Through Fiverr, in USD, at the price for the plan you select. Payment is staged as you choose, and no stage is funded before the work in it is delivered. The Fiverr service fee sits outside our numbers.

03 Scope. The six modules on page 5, plus whatever the plan you select adds on its own sheet. Anything not written in this document is not priced.

04 The reference site. Your reference is taken as a guide to structure only. The design is drawn from your logo, and we reproduce no part of that site's layout, imagery or copy. You said you want it to be your own; that is a commitment here, not a compliment.

05 Your reviews. Facebook reviews are your customers' words. We bring across the ones you select, exactly as written and attributed, and link to your Facebook page so anyone can verify them. We do not write reviews, edit their wording, or display a rating that has not been earned.

06 Photographs. We use the photographs you supply. Where a service has none, the page carries no image rather than a stock photograph, unless you tell us in writing that you would rather we used one.

07 What you supply. Your logo file, the towns you serve, phone and hours, Facebook page access, job photographs, and your decision on publishing prices. Page 5 says what happens if the photographs are not ready.

08 Review and approval. Three approval points: the direction on day 5, the homepage on day 12 and the booking system on day 17, plus the whole site before it goes live. Adjustments inside the scope above are part of the build; genuinely new requests are quoted first.

09 Costs and ownership. Domain, hosting, the booking plugin licence and any messaging fees are billed to you directly and registered in your name from the start. On final payment the site and all its content are yours, under credentials you control, with no licence fee to us.

Signed & agreed.

By signing below, each party agrees to be bound by this proposal and the accompanying mutual non-disclosure agreement as of the effective date. It may be executed electronically and in counterparts, and acceptance may be confirmed in the Fiverr order thread.
